

"Joe Lyles has performed a valuable public service by demystifying the law for laymen. He is a great writer and a great lawyer."

-The Honorable Alex Sanders
former Chief Judge of the South Carolina Court of Appeals

WRITINGS

Joe Lyles is the author of How You Can Avoid Legal Land Mines. This is a cautionary guidebook to troublesome situations that may land you in the courts, as well as what to do if you get there.

Real-case scenarios are used in this book to explain the way the law works, and it is an invaluable resource for anyone with questions or curiosities about the American legal system. For more of a preview on Joe's book, find it on the web at www.lyles-law.com.

Joe is also a hobbyist writer of poetry and fiction. His science fiction novel, The Resurrection Rock Trilogy, can be ordered online from Third Millennium Publishing at www.3mpub.com/lyles/.

Joe Lyles, a 1983 graduate of the University of South Carolina School of Law, has represented clients in a wide variety of legal cases. Having spent three years as a Navy JAG and one year as a law clerk to the Honorable C. Victor Pyle, Jr., Mr. Lyles started his own practice and has concentrated his efforts on trial practice and personal injury cases. He knows that a lawyer must have good courtroom skills if he or she is going to properly represent an injury victim. Although most injury cases settled prior to going to trial, Mr. Lyles is ready, willing, and able to try the case before a jury to ensure the claimant a fair settlement.

Joe Lyles has represented numerous collision victims involving airplanes, cars, trucks, buses, motorcycles, bicycles, and pedestrians. He has successfully represented victims of unsafe businesses who have suffered serious injuries from falls and other mishaps and those who have been injured by defective or dangerous products. He has also been called upon to provide legal representation to victims of assault.

Since most injury claims involve insurance coverage, Joe Lyles is experienced at handling all types. As a complimentary service, he handles social security disability claims for clients, as well.

ATTORNEY AT LAW

Mr. Lyles is highly qualified in the environmental field of law. In the past, he has represented victims of illegal waste dumps, contaminated ground water, and unfair fines by environmental agencies. If you need legal advice, rest assured that Joe Lyles has the education and experience necessary for your environmental case.

Joe Lyles has given his time and money to United Way, the Leukemia Society, and other organizations striving to cure serious diseases. He has done free legal work for religious and educational organizations, such as for sisters at a local convent and for indigent people. His contributions have gone toward the Boy Scouts of America, the YMCA, several colleges, universities, and schools, both private and public.

Joe Lyles has taught the Greenville Technical College's paralegal program, has given speeches for the Law School for Non-Lawyers and participates in the South Carolina Bar Association's Pro Bono Program. He is an active member of the American Trial Lawyers Association, the South Carolina Trial Lawyers Association and the Greenville Bar Association.

Mr. Lyles has contributed time and/or money to arts organizations, environmental/conservation organizations, political parties and candidates, and individuals in need. Currently, he serves as legal advisor to the local chapter of the Sierra Club.

Joe Lyles believes it is the duty of every citizen to give back to his or her community, governments, other beneficial organizations, and the needy. He hopes to leave this world at least a little bit better than he found it.

If there comes a time when you need a lawyer but have a legal problem that is outside his realm of expertise or experience, Joe Lyles will refer you to an attorney who is more qualified to handle your specific case. Either way, contacting Joe Lyles is a winning decision.
